

Uniquely Austin

Here are our suggestions for music, culture, and eats that are truly Austin. Text photos from these experiences to Caitlin Puffenberger, LCLD Communications Coordinator, at (540) 419-5639. Use discretion, as they may be included in the Third Meeting slideshow during the closing session.

Live Music

Austin is known as the live music capital of the world. Be sure to check out the music section of the Austin Chronicle and DO512.com for shows . . . and you may want to visit:

Antone's
2015 E. Riverside Dr.
Home of Texas blues for decades.

Cactus Café
2247 Guadalupe St.
Intimate setting for folk and bluegrass.

Broken Spoke
3201 S. Lamar Blvd.
Honky tonk dance hall.

The Moody Theatre
310 Willie Nelson Blvd.
The new home of the well-known Austin City Limits stage.

Arts & Culture

Enjoy Austin's yard art as well as . . .

Blanton Museum of Arts
200 E. Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd.
The largest university museum in the U.S. has works by Picasso, Rubens, and Botero.

University of Texas at Austin
24th and Guadalupe St.
Home of more than 50,000 Longhorn students and the LBJ Presidential Library.

South Congress Avenue (SoCo District)
Popular for eclectic shops and restaurants and a great place to find those perfect cowboy boots.

Eats

The restaurant list is endless, but you should really check out these famous food trucks (and remember to bring cash):

The Picnic
1720 Barton Springs Rd.

South Austin Trailer Park & Eatery
1311 S. 1st St.

In Your Backyard

These two things are right outside the door:

Lady Bird Lake Hike-and-Bike Trail
Hop on the trail out the back door of the Hyatt Regency Austin.

Congress Avenue Bats
Possibly see the city's 1.5 million Mexican Free-Tailed Bats emerge from underneath the Congress Bridge at dusk.
