Friday, June 22, 2018 (Continued)

Simon Tam, founder of the world's first and only all-Asian-American band, The Slants, wanted to change the world by creating an anti-racist band. Little did he know that the music would take him from the studio to the state penitentiary, and from the stage to the Supreme Court. Hear this fascinating tale of how the worlds of civil rights and IP law collided when an ordinary trademark application turned into an eight-year journey for self-identity and blurred the lines between art and activism. What is the "Behind the Music" story of the most discussed Supreme Court case in 2017? Find out directly from Simon, who believed The Slants was a name worth fighting for.
